Tye was born in the South Bronx, NYC. She grew up in the Andrew Jackson houses, where she resided until she was 13. Despite the fact that her life had been surrounded by drugs, guns, and murders, she could not understand why her mother would not allow the freedom most girls her age had in her neighborhood. It wasn't until she became an adult and obtained the freedom she desired when she became the party animal she thought she wanted to be. The partying and care for nothing attitude began to fade. Soon to follow was the great life of motherhood. She explains the love she felt for her mate, as well as the grand experience of becoming a mom. Tye shares in depth her struggles, striving for stability, and the opportunity to get back on her feet, all after falling on hard times. From the hood to self-acclimated success, she will take you on a journey you will never forget. Tye has painted the picture and told her truth in a way that we all need to hear. Men, women, and teenagers, can all benefit from this story. Life has a way of showing what is and what is not important in order to thrive. It's obvious that with giving us her memoir, Tye just wants us all to pay attention! !

It is Bombay in 1971, the year India went to war over what was to become Bangladesh. A hard-working bank clerk, Gustad Noble is a devoted family man who gradually sees his modest life unravelling. His young daughter falls ill; his promising son defies his father's ambitions for him.

He is the one reasonable voice amidst the ongoing dramas of his neighbours. One day, he receives a letter from an old friend, asking him to help in what at first seems like an heroic mission. But he soon finds himself unwittingly drawn into a dangerous network of deception. Compassionate, and rich in details of character and place, this unforgettable novel charts the journey of a moral heart in a turbulent world of change.
