Dementia: Presentations, Differential Diagnosis, and ...

Delirium (sometimes called 'acute confusional state') is an acute, fluctuating syndrome of disturbed consciousness, attention, cognition, and perception. It is a common condition in the differential diagnosis for dementia. People with cognitive impairment are at increased risk of delirium, and the two conditions often coexist.

Differential Diagnosis. Alzheimer's disease accounts for up to 80 percent of all dementia cases. Diagnosis may be complicated by other forms of dementia that have symptoms and pathologies similar to Alzheimer's disease. Knowing the key features and pathology of each type of dementia can help in the accurate diagnosis of patients, so they will receive the treatment and support services appropriate for their condition and maintain the highest possible quality of life.

Differential Diagnosis for Dementia. Progressive supranuclear palsy: PSP is often misdiagnosed because it is relatively rare and some of its symptoms are very much like those of Parkinson's disease. Memory problems and personality changes may also lead a physician to mistake PSP for depression, or even attribute symptoms to some form of dementia.
