Reflection and Refraction. Mirror image location can be predicted with ray diagrams and the mirror equation. The mirror equation and the equation for magnification is used to determine information about the images of curved mirrors. You will learn about these concepts as well as refraction in this section.

Reflection: The wave can bounce back e.g. light striking a mirror: Refraction: The wave can change speed and direction e.g. light travelling from air into water: Absorption: The wave can give up its energy e.g. microwaves are absorbed by food in a microwave oven.

Refraction Refraction is another term used to describe the the change in direction that light may undergo when travelling. It differs from reflection in that the light will pass through from one transmission medium to another. If the object changes direction during this process it is referred to as refraction.

Light - Light - Reflection and refraction: Light rays change direction when they reflect off a surface, move from one transparent medium into another, or travel through a medium whose composition is continuously changing. The law of reflection states that, on reflection from a smooth surface, the angle of the reflected ray is equal to the angle of the incident ray.

Optics is the branch of physics that studies the behaviour and properties of light, including its interactions with matter and the construction of instruments that use or detect it. Optics usually describes the behaviour of visible, ultraviolet, and infrared light. Because light is an electromagnetic wave, other forms of electromagnetic radiation such as X-rays, microwaves, and radio waves ...
